Are You Living on Purpose?

By Dream Coach Marcia Wieder

Your Purpose is who you are, what gets you excited; I might even say that your Purpose is remembering why you're here. If you're like a lot of readers, you might say, "I want to make my dreams come true, but, between you and me, I don't think I have a Purpose."

Your Purpose is not a big, burdensome, heavy weight that you "must" accomplish in your life; rather, it's a joyous expression of who you are. Standing in your Purpose, the quality of your dreams and your life, will change. Your Purpose could be anything that gets your juices flowing; it comes from what turns you on in life. Your Purpose is anything that touches your heart and makes a difference to you.

Stand up to Your Inner Mean Girl

By Christine Arylo

"Why aren't you as good as her?" "Shouldn't you be farther along by now?"

Recognize that voice? Some call it the Inner Critic. But the truth, those words are way more personal. This is the voice of your Inner Mean Girl. She's negative. She's catty. She's judgmental. She compares your worst to everyone else's best.

In her eyes, you lose every time. She spews cruel words at you and makes you feel like you're in 7th grade again—and NOT in the popular group. Your Inner Mean Girl's favorite thing to powerful conversation and event. Watch for details!

do is to make you feel small, inadequate, and unworthy. She's always finding evidence to prove her theory: you are not enough. We've got news for you: Your Inner Mean Girl is a liar!

The Secret to more Energy: Tap the Geyser of Your Gifts

By Tama Kieves

I talked to a woman who had been very gifted in music, but who hadn't pursued it as an adult. "I am afraid of failing," she said, but as we talked further, she admitted in the quiet tones of held back truth, that she felt like a failure now. She felt tired and angry, out of sorts with her life. I don't blame her. It takes more effort to create a life you don't want than to create the life you crave.

An unused gift is a keg of dynamite. It's dangerous. It leaks out and begins to poison you. It haunts your cells with a hoarse song, "use me or die, use me or die." Your gifts are powerful energy sources. It takes so much energy to hold back life. It hurts to choose smallness. It hurts to let yourself down in secret ways, muffling the cries that no one else hears. It hurts to resist the evolutionary instinct within you to grow, express, go beyond survival and thrive, and stake your one true place upon this planet.ic.
